Carl Schmidt Sohn™ Introduces KÖLN, A Collection Of German Kitchen Knives With Sustainable Coconut Shell Mix Handles

Coconut shells make durable and sustainable kitchen knife handles

AZUSA, CA (March 2, 2019)— Carl Schmidt Sohn™ created KÖLN, German stainless steel kitchen knives that bring to light what is possible in sustainable materials like coconut shells. Debuting at the 2019 International Home and Housewares Show, March 2.

Coconut Shells and More

Made in Germany and constructed from fine stainless steel out of Solingen, Germany, KÖLN blades are designed for high-performance and precision. Equally impressive are the ergonomically-shaped handles made of 65% PP and 35% grated coconut shells. This mixture of plastic and natural shells gives the handles an earthy, natural look while its smooth texture gives it a comfortable grip.

KÖLN Availability

KÖLN will be made available for wholesale at the 2019 International Home + Housewares Show in Chicago, Cook + Bakeware Booth #S4322.
